Description of the (Research) Team

We lead a project called "the Co-operative Soil Health Lab" aiming to increase soil literacy in Israel, the project is run by two groups –professional (farmers, consultants etc.) and educational, comprised of teachers at all levels - primary to tertiary (students), including teachers training, from diverse areas - rural, peri urban and urban.

Some of us manage educational / agricultural institutions. each group contains 12-20 people.

We are located in Israel and Over the last year we've met bi-weekly to study the relationship between soil health, biology and physics. We think about how to share this experience with pupils & students and piloted these attempts. Also, we enjoy each other's company!

We've received ~ 30,000 Euro in funding over the last year from private funds, and are expecting to receive more funding for this coming year (20,000 USD already approved).

Expertise of the Team Leader

Teacher & environmental engineer (graduate of Technion – Israel institute of Technology), worked as soil conservation planner at the Israeli Ministry of Agriculture, research assistant at ETH Zurich (ERC Advanced Grant "SoilLife"), and head of Environmental Department at the "Kishon River Authority" in Haifa, Israel.

Also formed an NGO for pooling resources towards soil health – "Invest in soil – Slow Money Israel"
